

Section 1: Nonprofit Messaging

Your Ambassadors Are The Reason Your Campaign Will Succeed

Fundraising success is driven by your ambassadors. They are the lifeblood of any campaign. Without their energy, passion, and outreach, your campaign will struggle to gain momentum.

Ambassador-driven donations account for 60–90% of total funds raised.

The way you communicate with your ambassadors directly impacts your ability to raise funds. Clear, inspiring, and motivating messaging throughout the campaign lifecycle makes all the difference.

Campaigns with engaged, well-prepared ambassadors raise 3–5x more than those without them.

Your messaging should be strategically timed to match these five key phases of your campaign:

- Ambassador Recruitment
- Campaign Launch
- Mid-Campaign Push
- Final Stretch
- Thank-You Period

The most efficient way of communicating with your ambassadors is through WhatsApp or text message.

You should take advantage of two different forms of messaging:

- 1) on an individual basis and
- 2) as a group.

You need to communicate with your ambassadors individually. People can hide in group settings, but establishing a personal line of communication with each and every one of your ambassadors creates accountability and deepens your relationships with them.

At the same time, positive peer pressure is a tremendous motivator. When you create a big community solely designed to shout-out successes, offer public motivation, and celebrate wins, the energy you create becomes contagious. When you combine individual communication with a communal movement, your ambassadors will feel supported, energized, and a part of something bigger, a team that's working toward a shared goal. This is a key part of your fundraising plan and the secret to keeping your ambassadors engaged and excited throughout the campaign.

By providing public praise, celebrating achievements, and keeping everyone focused on the shared mission, you can strengthen the team spirit and drive better results.

Benefits of a Group WhatsApp:

- Foster community: A shared space for everyone to communicate ensures no one feels isolated or unsupported.
- Create excitement: Regular updates and encouragement in the group can build excitement and keep the energy high throughout the campaign.

Guidelines for Using Individual vs. Group Messaging

Personalization: Individual messages should always be personal and specific. Mention specific progress (e.g., percentage of goal raised) and individual accomplishments. Public praise in the group should focus on team success and community spirit.

- Frequency: Individual messages should be sent per day (1-2 messages). Group messages should be less frequent, ideally sent 1-2 times a day to maintain energy and motivation.
- Tone: Keep individual messages motivational and personal. Group messages should maintain an upbeat, celebratory tone that emphasizes collective progress.
- Purpose: Use individual messages to engage ambassadors personally, ensuring they feel valued and motivated. Group messages are for building community, celebrating milestones, and providing group encouragement.
